

FARM WATERWORKS.

How a Good System Can Be Put In by the Farmer Himself.

Get a good force pump, B, and put it over a large well, setting it near the edge. From the pump run an iron pipe, C, down to the ground, then three feet away from the well. Then run pipe up 30 feet to tank D, which should be about three feet high and eight feet in diameter. From bottom of tank run another pipe, E, down below frost line; then turn at a right angle, X, and let it run to O, a point almost under the watering trough. At O bend it up until it is about a foot above top of trough, G, and place faucet at F. At X or O other pipes may be attached to run to the house, says Missouri Valley Farmer. Pump the tank full. The water will run into the pipes, and any time the faucet is turned at trough or house the water will flow instantly.

FARM SCALES.

The Satisfaction Which One Farmer Gets Out of Their Possession.

A pair of wagon scales on the farm are like the necessities of life in the home and family. I would not know how to do without them, declares a writer in Farm and Home. I never owned a farm without scales and it seems to me the farmer that can could go to sleep if his barn was on fire. There is no end to the reasons for scales on the farm. The satisfaction they afford is alone worth ten times their cost.

At this time I am delivering 20,000 bushels of onions to a large storage buyer. I weigh the loads as they go out and the wagons as they return. I compare my weights with the buyers'. Although they may weigh me short 50 to 100 pounds some loads, it is a great satisfaction to know what is going on and that it is not a great deal worse. The farmer is a back number that will deliver grain to an elevator and cattle and hops to a shipper, not knowing his weights.

I might enter into a long, practical use for scales on the farm, for scientific uses in the feed lot, etc., but I do not believe that the farmer who has made money enough to buy a pair of scales needs details. He only needs to wake up, install a pair of scales on his farm, read good farm journals and do business on business principles.

Treating Seed Potatoes for Scab.

Again we give the proper method of treating seed potatoes for scab: Soak them for two hours in a solution containing one-half pint of formalin to 15 gallons of water. When planting, avoid ground which has recently produced a scabby crop of tubers.

It costs less to produce a pound of butterfat with the right kind of a corn than it does to produce a pound of beef. Compare prices.

CONTEST NOTICE.
